Abstract

The Anna Hiss Collection is mainly comprised of Anna Hiss' personal papers and records from The University of Texas athletic staff related to the work of Anna Hiss as well as documents relating to the later effort of Rosemary Slacks to save the Anna Hiss Gym. Anna Hiss was the instructor of physical education at The University of Texas at Austin from 1918 until her retirement in 1957. She revolutionized the role of women's athletics in Texas through her leadership in the Women's Athletic Association (later named the University of Texas Sports Association), the University's intramural and club sports, the completion of a groundbreaking athletic facility, and her overall attitude towards female athletics. Rosemary (Rosie) Slacks continued Anna Hiss' legacy at UT and was a driving force behind efforts to save the Anna Hiss Gym from being demolished in the 1980s. This collection contains an extensive amount of correspondence, photographs of athletic groups, scrapbooks, agendas of club meetings, rolls taken, pamphlets, posters, newspaper clippings, and other printed materials. In addition to Hiss' work with U.T.S.A., she was involved with the Campus League of Women Voters, which has a small presence in this collection.

Biographical Note

Anna Hiss, daughter of Charles Alger and Mary Lavinia (Hughes) Hiss, was born in Baltimore, Maryland on May 11, 1893. From 1912-1913, she attended Hollins College in Virginia and in 1917 she graduated from Sargent College, now Boston University, where she served as President of the student government. After graduating, she taught for a year at the Friends' School in Baltimore before accepting the position as the instructor of physical education at The University of Texas at Austin. It was here at UT that Hiss began to expand and improve opportunities for women in sports and physical education.

While working at UT Austin, Hiss headed the women's intramural sports program, initially called the Women's Athletic Association (WAA), which later changed to the University of Texas Sports Association (U.T.S.A.) in 1933. Hiss was a key advocate for adding a physical education curriculum at the School of Education. The Women's Gymnasium, which opened in 1931, was a product of Hiss' research of other similar facilities and her intent to create a state-of-the-art facility. She was also responsible for adding a girl's athletic field, tennis courts and archer-golf areas to the campus. Hiss became the official director of the U.T.S.A. in 1944.

While working to raise the standards for women's physical education, Hiss also continued her own education by earning a B.S. degree from Columbia University in 1936. In 1949, she received an honorary doctorate from Boston University and in 1955 she received an Honor Award from the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation for her involvement in state and national P.E. groups.

After thirty-six years as Director of Physical Training for Women and dedicating her time to improving women's physical education, Hiss retired from the University of Texas at Austin in 1957. She moved back to Baltimore in the late 1960s and never married. Anna Hiss died in Baltimore on January 28, 1972 at the age of 79.

Anna Hiss was an active member of two campus groups: she served as a sponsor of the Campus League of Women Voters and the director of the University of Texas Sports Association (U.T.S.A.), formerly the Women's Athletic Association (WAA). The mission of the Campus League is to educate women voters. The Campus League is a chapter of The League of Women Voters of Texas, formed on October 19, 1919 in San Antonio.

U.T.S.A. was established in 1931, the same year that Physical Training became a department of the College of Arts and Sciences. The U.T.S.A. regulated intramural and club sports at the University of Texas. The Women's Intramurals split from the U.T.S.A. in 1933 and teams were organized by sororities, students living in dormitories, and independent groups. Those who competed in the intramurals were awarded cups, pins and felt emblems at the "T" Night Banquet for Women. In 1937, the first posture contest was held at the Hogg Auditorium. Hiss worked to promote the intramural program throughout the 1940s.

UT employee, Rosemary (Rosie) Slacks continued Anna Hiss' legacy at UT. Slacks began her career at UT in 1962 as a physical activity specialist with an emphasis in dance. In addition to dance, Rosie taught swimming, bowling, golf, badminton and basic courses in the Department of Kinesiology and Health Education majors program. She dedicated her time and energy to maintain the Anna Hiss Gym and eventually campaigned to save the Anna Hiss Gym from being demolished in the 1980s.
